

This prevents the main menu from locking up while constantly refreshing, receiving messages, and reading messages. Receiving and reading are split to get the data back to main thread with out the main thread locking up reading messages